

Wesley Pegden

Highly nonrepetitive sequences: winning strategies from the Local Lemma

Abstract:

We prove game-theoretic versions of several classical results on nonrepetitive sequences, showing the existence of winning strategies using an extension of the Local Lemma which can dramatically reduce the number of edges needed in a dependency graph when there is an ordering underlying the significant dependencies of events. These results appear to represent the first successful application of a Local Lemma to games.